

U.S. Customs and Border Protection
Interim Response to RFI 031

Question: Provide all preparatory work that DHS and CBP have produced or conducted (e.g., operational plans, surveys, investment analyses, requirements documents) that would support the new Administration in developing 2017 initiatives.

U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) is currently drafting a series of informational documents to support the incoming Administration's 2017 Priorities as publically articulated during the Presidential campaign. These documents include:

- CBP Requirements Document. An overview of current CBP requirements across the breadth of CBP mission responsibilities.
- Border Security Requirements. Requirements document to define what a secure border looks like; develop associated metrics; and identify what requirements CBP is targeting to achieve the desired end state. The final product will:
 - (a) Define a Secure Border (with associated metrics) and describe how a group of investments (see "b" below) results in a more secure border.
 - (b) Define the Group of Investments: Package of requirements (such as tactical infrastructure, fencing, (b) (7)(E) that is necessary to secure the border.
- Trade Enforcement Requirements. Capture emerging trade enforcement requirements.
- Legislative Proposals. Identify legislative proposals, including requests for additional legislative authorities, to support the agency's mission under the new Administration.

CBP will provide these materials as soon as possible to the transition team and is targeting January 1, 2017.
